Each departmental curriculum presents perspectives from the past, provides an understanding of the present and directs attention to the challenges of the future. As active researchers, faculty in the College work to advance the frontiers of knowledge and our understanding of humanity and the world we live in, and to use that knowledge and understanding to improve the human condition.

Program / Department Assessment Narrative

The primary purpose of assessment is to use data to inform decisions and improve programs (student learning) and departments (operations); this is an on-going process of defining goals and expectations, collecting results, analyzing data, comparing current and past results and initiatives, and making decisions based on these reflections. In the space below, describe the program's or department's overall plan for improving student learning and/or operations (the "assessment plan"). Consider the following:

- 1) What strategies exist to assess the outcomes?
- 2) What does the program/department expect to achieve with the goals and objectives identified above?
- 3) How might prior or current initiatives (improvements) influence the anticipated outcomes this year?
- 4) What is the plan for using data to improve student learning and/or operations?
- 5) How will data be shared within the Program/Department (and, where appropriate, the College/VP-area)?

Reflection (Due 9/15/18)

Reflection

The primary purpose of assessment is to use data to inform decisions and improve programs and operations; this is an on-going process of defining goals and expectations, collecting results, analyzing data, comparing current and past results and initiatives, and making decisions based on these reflections. Recalling this purpose, respond to the questions below.

1) How were assessment results shared in the program / department?

Please select all that apply. If "other", please use the text box to elaborate.

Distributed via email (selected)

Presented formally at staff / department / committee meetings (selected)

Discussed informally (selected)

Other (explain in text box below)

2) How frequently were assessment results shared?

Frequently (>4 times per cycle)
 Periodically (2-4 times per cycle)
 Once per cycle (selected)
 Results were not shared this cycle

3) With whom were assessment results shared?

Please select all that apply.

Department Head (selected)
 Dean / Asst. or Assoc. Dean
 Departmental assessment committee (selected)
 Other faculty / staff (selected)

4) Consider the impact of prior applied changes. Specifically, compare current results to previous results to evaluate the impact of a previously reported change. Demonstrate how the use of results improved student learning and/or operations.

In the 2016-2017 assessment cycle, we suggested that "Students felt well prepared for internships, however two items on intern evaluations (copy writing and account management) suggest increased focus on these areas. GSP exams suggest advertising students struggle with writing, however, the standardized departmental approach to writing may be an invalid measure of writing for advertising. Finally, exit surveys may be better administered through or in partnership with the Office of Institutional Assessment."

In the 2017-2018 cycle we saw improvement of all areas measured in the internship evaluations with all students scoring B or better in their internships. The GSP pretest/post-test has been removed across the sequences and the department is considering alternative means of assessing writing.

Because Advertising portfolios were reviewed before the department could develop a new portfolio evaluation instrument, the 2017-2018 sequence relied on previous measures. Moving forward, the Advertising sequence will use the standardized ACEJMC measures for portfolio assessment in the 2018-2019 assessment cycle.

Adding CMCN 220 to the curriculum has created opportunities during advising to discuss with individual students the overall field of strategic communication and the role advertising plays. Other changes to the capstone course CMCN 437 Strategic Communication Campaigns, driven by advice from local professionals, has led greater understanding of the role of PR in strategic communication campaigns by advertising students, as well as the role of advertising by PR students.

5) Over the past three assessment cycles, what has been the overall impact of "closing the loop"? Provide examples of improvements in student learning, program quality, or department operations that are directly linked to assessment data and follow-up analysis.

The Advertising sequence is gravitating away from previous measures and adopting metrics aligned with both SACS requirements and the ACEJMC core competencies and values. All measures should be both SACS and ACEJMC-friendly beginning with the 2018-2019 assessment cycle. Performance in internships has improved. The issue of writing assessment remains and the sequence should meet with PR and Org Comm to explore either a standardized approach for the strategic communication major or find a specialized approach that works with the ACEJMC core competencies and values and SACS.

During the past three assessment cycles, the Communication Department has moved to effect certain improvements in curricular design and instruction with an eye toward deeper involvement in professional communications. First, in 2016 the Department converged the Advertising, Public Relations, and Organizational Communication sequences to create a new major in Strategic Communication. While still a relatively new development, this disciplinary convergence comes in response to professional trends and follows advice from practitioners in those fields of media.

The department similarly has established a variety of micro-level improvements to coincide with this move toward greater convergence. For example, a new course, CMCN 220 Principles of Strategic Communication, was created as a requirement for all Strategic Communication majors in the 2017-2018 catalog year and beyond. It affords an introductory overview of the related professions with the relevant conceptualization supporting the strategic focus. Another new course was moved into a pivotal position for the our global and mobile perspective. CMCN 345 Social Media Communication was added as a requirement for the Mass Communication major to cultivate social networking principles and practices for Mass Communication students in Broadcasting and Journalism. CMCN 345 is also an option for the Organizational Communication sequence.

The department has created a more direct professional experience for students anticipating careers in Advertising and Public Relations to gain practical training. The inaugural semester of fall 2017 welcomed the student-run PR firm, Cypress Communication to our undergraduates. The Cypress Communication firm welcomes all Strategic Communication majors and already has a variety of clients to hone their skills and provide valid work experiences. Meanwhile, Mass Communication (Broadcast/Journalism) majors have developed a partnership in television programming with the community access channel, AOC Community Media, while envisioning a student-run TV channel on campus in the future.
