AAPL

For over 60 years, the American Association of Professional Landmen has supported and represented the best interests of America's landmen before the public, legislators and federal administrations and agencies, to advocate for policies and practices that ensure the continued success of our nation's energy needs.

With over 15,000 members nationwide, AAPL serves as a guiding resource to support landmen as they continue their education in an ever evolving industry, work closely with the public to advance oil and gas interests, and maintain ethical standards.
