

Dean Nathan Roberts, College of Education, previously he served as department head of Educational Foundations and Leadership. Roberts is a former school board attorney who has taught master's and doctoral courses in school law, organizing the learning environment, and legal liability in tourism, sports and recreation. His areas of expertise include education law and special education law, K-12 education, student rights, teacher rights, and school policies. He holds a B.S. in Secondary Education (1984), law degree from Paul M. Hebert Law Center (1987), and a doctorate in educational leadership, research and counseling from LSU (2001).