Statement of Students Rights and Responsibilities

All publications and broadcasts are subject to the canons of responsible journalism and community standards, including the avoidance of libel, avoidance of indecency or obscenity, undocumented allegations, and techniques of harassment and innuendo. Freedom of expression may be subject to reasonable time, place and manner regulations that are content-neutral, serve a significant university interest and leave open ample alternative channels for communication of the information.

If organizations are to remain an integral part of the University, they must set educational directions. That is the key to eliminating hazing. The ideal associate/new member education program should encourage and emphasize the approved ideals and purposes of the organization such as, personal friendships, scholarship, cultural awareness, financial responsibility, spiritual awareness, ritual importance, social development, resources available on campus and in the community, leadership, recreational development, alumni relations or community service.
